

AI Palmistry & Tarot Intelligence Platform

Milestone 2 — Palm Analysis & Tarot Intelligence, Verification Report

Covers: tarot_engine.py, palm_engine.py, reading_report.py

Executive Summary

I ran three of my own experiments this week to check whether the Milestone 2 modules actually work together, not just in isolation. All three of the milestone's core tasks : the palm analysis engine, the tarot interpretation engine, and a combined reading workflow are now functional and tested with real output. Along the way I found and fixed one real bug in the PDF report generator: it was silently dropping a line of text from every tarot reading. That's fixed now and I've re-verified it.

1. Tarot Engine — Verification

I imported tarot_engine.py fresh into a notebook and checked it function by function before trusting it, rather than assuming last week's fix held up.

Check	Result
Module imports cleanly	Yes , "tarot_engine imported successfully!"
draw_cards() signature/source	Confirmed correct via inspect.getsource() , matches the fixed version
Deck loads from real file path	78 cards loaded from my actual tarot-images.json
Card draw produces real cards	3 real cards drawn with a seed (Temperance, The Empress, King of Cups)
Template reading generates correctly	Full keyword & meaning text produced for all 3 cards

Finding: the fix from last week held up under a fresh, independent test loading the deck, drawing cards, and generating a reading all work correctly on the real dataset, not just in my earlier isolated test.

2. Combined Reading Workflow & PDF Report — Verification

This is the real end-to-end test: palm engine plus tarot engine plus PDF export, run together for one session, using palm image and my own dataset paths.

```
reading = reading_report.generate_combined_reading(
    palm_image_filename="Hand_0001657.jpg", tarot_deck_path=r"...\tarot-images.json",
    palmistry_code_dir=r"...\palmistry-main\palmistry-main\code",
    tarot_question="What should I focus on this month?",
    spread_size=3,
    use_llm=False
)
```

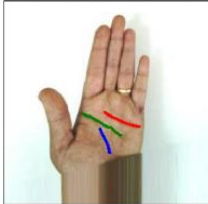

Check	Result
Palm analysis (yeonsumia pipeline)	Success : real annotated palm image generated with line overlays
Tarot draw + template reading	Success : 3 real cards drawn (Six of Swords Rev., Page of Pentacles, Three of Swords)
Combined into one reading object	Yes : both results held together for the same session
PDF report generated	Yes : reading_report.pdf created, file existence confirmed

Palmistry & Tarot Reading Report

Generated: 2026-07-26T19:23:00

Palm Reading

Check your palmistry result!

<Heart line>
Love line governs all matters of the heart, including romance, friendship, and commitment.
Your Heart line is short, which means you will meet various people and have a broad range of relationships throughout your life.

<Head line>
Head line tells us about our intellectual curiosities and pursuits.
Your Head line is long, which means you will explore a broad range of topics throughout your life.

<Life line>
Life line reveals your experiences, vitality, and zest. Be careful, it has nothing to do with how long you will live!
Your Life line is short, which means you are independent and autonomous.

* Note: This program is just for fun! Please take the result with a light heart.
If you want to check out more about palmistry, we recommend <https://www.allure.com/story/palm-reading-guide-hand-lines>

Tarot Reading

Your question: What should I focus on this month?

Six of Swords (Reversed)

Page of Pentacles (Upright)

Three of Swords (Upright)

Keywords: adaptation, adjustments, science, travel
Meaning: Refusing to accept that things have changed; Playing the victim

Keywords: practicality, prosperity, learning, growth
Meaning: Learning the value of a dollar; Starting a savings plan

Keywords: variance, difference, dissatisfaction, heartache
Meaning: Being brave enough to see things as they really are; Exercising your critical eye

What this shows: the actual PDF I submitted , a real palm photo with detected lines and its built-in text interpretation, plus the tarot reading below it, all in one report.

Bug found and fixed: I noticed the tarot section of my PDF was missing the "<Past: Card Name (Orientation)>" header line for each card, only the Keywords/Meaning lines showed up. I traced this to how the PDF library renders text: it treats angle brackets as formatting instructions, so it was silently deleting anything wrapped in < > instead of showing it as plain text. I fixed this by escaping those characters before they reach the PDF, and re-ran the export to confirm the header lines now show up correctly. I'm flagging this rather than quietly patching it, since it changes what the reports look like going forward.

3. Key Findings & Next Steps

What's confirmed working

- Tarot engine: loads real data, draws cards, builds readings
- Palm engine: real subprocess call to the line-detection pipeline succeeds
- Combined workflow: one function produces both results together
- PDF report: real file generated, palm image embedded correctly
- Found and fixed a real bug in the report text rendering

Known limitations, honestly stated

- Tarot reading only tested with the template version (use_llm=False)
- Palm analysis output is an image with text baked in, not separate structured text
- Only 2 of 6 spread types supported so far (Single Card, Three Card)
- Hardcoded local paths still need cleanup before wider sharing

Next step — AI Interpretation Engine: right now the tarot reading is template-based (real data, but no LLM involved yet) and the palm side has no LLM step at all. The planned next piece of work is wiring an LLM into both — using the already-built build_llm_prompt() grounding approach so the model rephrases real card data into natural prose instead of inventing meanings, and extending the same idea to the palm side so its line-detection output can also be turned into a readable, personalized interpretation rather than only an annotated image. This is the natural bridge from Milestone 2 into Milestone 3's AI Interpretation Engine.

Submitted by

Sourish Halder

Milestone 2: Palm Analysis & Tarot Intelligence